

Truth to be Considered

By Keith Greer

On Thursday, May 27, 1999, Darrell Scott, the father of Rachel Scott, one of Littleton, Colorado's Columbine High School shooting victims, was invited to address the House Judiciary Committee's subcommittee. His remarks to our national leaders, during this special Congressional session, were painfully truthful. They need to be heard by every parent, every teacher, every politician, every sociologist, every psychologist, and every so-called expert! The courageous words spoken by Darrell Scott are powerful, penetrating, and deeply personal. Words from the heart of a man who had lost so much could be nothing but profound to these members of Congress.

The following portion of the transcript deals with the fact that there is both good and evil in the hearts of men and women.

"We all contain the seeds of kindness or the seeds of violence. The death of my wonderful daughter, Rachel Joy Scott, and the deaths of that heroic teacher, and the other eleven children who died must not be in vain. Their blood cries out for answers.

The first recorded act of violence occurred when Cain slew his brother Abel out in the field. The villain was not the club he used. Neither was it the NRA, the National Rifle Association. The true killer was Cain, and the reason for the murder could only be found in Cain's heart. In the days that followed the Columbine tragedy, I was amazed at how quickly fingers began to be pointed at groups such as the NRA. I am not a member of the NRA. I am not a hunter. I do not even own a gun. I am not here to represent or defend the NRA, because I don't believe that they are responsible for my daughter's death. Therefore, I do not believe they need to be defended. If I believed they had anything to do with Rachel's murder I would be their strongest opponent. I am here today to declare that Columbine was not just a tragedy—it was a spiritual event that should be forcing us to look at where the real blame lies! Much of the blame lies here in this room. Much of the blame lies behind the pointing fingers of the accusers themselves. I wrote a poem just four nights ago that best expresses my feelings. This was written way before I knew I would be speaking here today.

"Your laws ignore our deepest needs

Your words are empty air

You've stripped away our heritage

You've outlawed simple prayer.

Now gunshots fill our classrooms

And precious children die

You seek for answers everywhere

And ask the question "Why"

You regulate restrictive laws

Through legislative creed

And yet you fail to understand,

That God is what we need!"

"Men and women are three-part beings. Each consists of body, soul, and spirit. When we refuse to acknowledge a third part of our makeup, we create a void that allows evil, prejudice, and hatred to rush in and reek havoc. Spiritual influences were present within our educational systems for most of our nation's history. Many of our major colleges began as theological seminaries. This is a historical fact. What has happened to us as a nation?

"We have refused to honor God, and in doing so, we open the doors to hatred and violence. And when something as terrible as Columbine's tragedy occurs, politicians immediately look for a scapegoat, such as the NRA. They immediately seek to pass more restrictive laws that contribute to erosion of our personal and private liberties.

We do not need more restrictive laws. Eric and Dylan would not have been stopped by metal detectors. No amount of gun laws can stop someone who spends months planning this type of massacre. The real villain lies within our own hearts. Political posturing and restrictive legislation are not the answers. The young people of our nation hold the key.

There is a spiritual awakening taking place that will not be squelched! We do not need more religion. We do not need more gaudy television evangelists spewing out verbal religious garbage. We do not need more million-dollar church buildings built, while people with basic needs are being ignored. We do need a change of heart and a humble acknowledgment that this nation was founded on the principle of simple trust in God!

As my son Craig lay under that table in the school library and saw his friends murdered before his very eyes, He did not hesitate to pray in school. I defy any law or politician to deny him that right! I challenge every young person in America, and around the world, to realize that on April 20, 1999, at Columbine High School - prayer was brought back to our schools.

Do not let the many prayers offered by those students be in vain. Dare to move into the new millennium with a sacred disregard for legislation that violates your God-given right to communicate with Him. To those of you who would point your finger at the NRA - I give to you a sincere challenge. Dare to examine your own heart before casting the first stone!

My daughter's death will not be in vain! The young people of this country will not allow that to happen!"

Our nation needs to give sober consideration to the words of this father who lost his daughter. Whenever a terrible tragedy of this nature occurs in our country, people start looking for answers. Look no farther than the home. Who is raising our children? Sadly, in many cases it is not the parents. We need to place God back in our homes, back in our schools, and most importantly, back in our nation! The problem is not the guns -- it is the hearts of those who hold them! God told us long ago -- "Keep your heart with all diligence, for out of it spring the issues of life." Proverbs 4:23 Get the heart right, and the works will follow!
